Course Overview

This course is designed for students with little or no previous knowledge or training in economics. Through reading and discussing some current issues and related works of corresponding professions, important economic theories will be highlighted. The aim is to provide students with a preliminary overview of economic theories and applied concepts. This course mainly explores the way(s) economists analyse the economic or social issues.

Learning Outcomes

Students should have a basic exposure to some fundamental economic concepts after completing this course. You might apply economic thinking to daily lives and decisions. You might also know how to read economic news and be able to have critical opinions to assess current economic policies or some social issues around the world.

Main References (Recommended reading list/references)

There is no single book that acts as a core text. You may read other books even though notations may be different. The course, sometimes, is also based on selective articles or online resources from various sources. However, reference will still be made to:

- Books: 1. Mankiw, N. Gregory (2024), Principles of Economics (10th ed.) *Main textbook
 2. Pindyck, Robert S. & Daniel L. Rubinfeld (2012), Microeconomics (8th ed.)

Assessment

Tentatively, class-activity (20%) will be in the format of discussion or game among students on the web or in the room. We also have an in-class 100-min. test (35%) with T/F, MC, & essays from 9:00 to 10:40 on 15th Mar. 2024, a similar 2-hour final test (45%) may be arranged by the University, please note carefully the date and venue.
