Information Design in Supermodular Games

Yi-Chun Chen
National University of Singapore

Daisuke Oyama, University of Tokyo and Satoru Takahashi, NUS

Abstract:
In a finite supermodular game satisfying a payoff richness condition, we characterize smallest equilibrium implementable outcomes by a path obedience condition. Unlike in the binary-action case, optimal information design with richer action sets can induce leader–follower roles among identical players, yielding higher expected aggregate action than any perfectly coordinated design.